Saratoga Springs.

The bankers of the city and vicinity will find much to interest them in the following circular from George Marsland, corresponding secretary of the American Bankers' Association:

The Executive Council held a meeting June 5th as required by the constitution of this association, and it was unanimously resolved to hold our annual convention on the 13th and 14th of August, at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., the pleasure of meeting at Chicago or the other places to which we were invited being postponed for the present. Your bank is entitled to send one delegate, and you are respectfully requested to attend and vote at the various sessions of the convention, and to take sessions of the convention, and to take part in all its deliberations, which are expected to be of grave importance and special interest this year.

and recent events give to their claims an urgency which cannot fail to secure responsive action without delay.

Our correspondence with the banks about the work proposed for the coming convention suggests, among the topics for discussion, the causes of the recuperative strength of our finance and commerce, the perils and safeguards of our banking system, the relation of the banks to the Treasury, the present aspects of the silver ury, the present aspects of the silver question, the indications of the foreign de-mand for our securities, the prospective exports and the internal exchanges, the decline in the rate of interest, the changes in the basis of bank circulation, the comparative growth of national, State and private banks in various sections of the country, the fluctuations in the Treasury balance of gold and silver, the later tendencies of usury penalties, the best means of obtaining sound bankruptcy legislation, the guarantees against defalcation and breach of trust, the growth of direct trade between the West and Europe, with its influence on American banks and their methods, the proposed improvements in bills of lading, the movements of the clearinghouses, the lessons of the recent panic, comparing it with former monetary perturbations before and since the war. These and other topics connected with the thin the since it is the prospective monetary situations. year, and the prospective monetary situa-tion here and in Europe, have been men-tioned for discussion, and some of them should be presented in reports and statistical papers, rather than by elaborate and long addresses.
